I recommend to you Americans that your Statue of Liberty on the East Coast be supplemented by a Statue of Responsibility on the West Coast.
Viktor Frankl

All that we are is the result of what we have thought. The mind is everything. What we think. We become.
Buddha

I am not a bit surprised that kids riot. I am surprised they are so placid because they are all so unspeakably bored.

Peter F. Druker

The world is a comedy to those that feel and a tragedy to those that think.
Shakespeare

I do my thing and you do your thing.
I am not in this world to live up to your expectations and you are not in this world to live up to mine.
You are you and I am I,
And if by chance we find each other, it's beautiful.
If not, it can't be helped.
Frederick S. Perls

My country, right or wrong is like saying my mother, drunk or sober.
G.K. Chesterton

This is not primarily the place where we have to be,
it is the place where we are.
This is not our prison but our home.
It is the road we must walk and the walking of it is called life.
Because we will walk it only once.
Then how important is it that we should walk it with some purpose that we call our own.

"Time Will Tell"
And then a time
When the people are no longer infatuated
With their schools.
No longer see them as
The one best hope for a better future
For themselves and their children.
A turning away, a rejection.
A crisis not so much of money,
But of confidence.
For the money is there
For guns and ships and planes,
And cars and homes and vacations.
But for education
The plea is poverty, inability.
A phase, perhaps, which will pass
Tomorrow, this year, the next.
Time will tell . . .
And the children wait.
Glenn Keever

Students find themselves under a blanket of impersonal rules . . . it is interesting how a faculty intent on few rules for itself can fashion such a plethora of them for students.
Clark Kerr

A modern college is a place where 2,000 can be seated in the classrooms and 50,000 in the stadium.
Anonymous

The thing is to try to understand, to realize how it is possible for people who are capable of being angels and heroes and saints to be bastards and killers and quitters.

Abraham H. Maslow

"There'll Always Be A Calliope"

On Sunday afternoons in the park, they ride through the years and through the generations on a bright carousel of dreams.

Watch them now. The children ride and reach for the brass ring every time they swing around, and around again. The calliope plays on forever, and it sounds like all the pipers calling.

And each new generation of mothers finds a merry-go-round somewhere for her children to ride. What is it the bright ride offers? Why do we all climb aboard?

There is a baby in its mother's arms, and the ride might as well be the boat of Wynken, Blynken, and Nod off a silver sea. For the baby, this is cuddling. It's still the mother's merry-go-round.

There's the very young Negro girl, eager and excited on that big gold and red rooster. And she is full of hope. She would answer, "No, Henny Penny, the sky is never going to fall in. Not on Me." She can't read yet. She hasn't heard Langston Hughes' poem. "Is there any Jim Crow on this merry-go-round, Mister, 'cause I want to ride?"

Always there is the boy perched on the great green frog. The frog who would a-woeing-go. The boy who will grow with princely dreams. Reaching, reaching for the brass ring. Beside him is a gentle girl on a great Puss-in-Boots. "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, where have you been?" "I've been to London to visit the Queen."

Ah, the horses! The bold, grand horses more noble than any fantasy. Who designed the first great carousel steed? How many boys have been King Arthur for a 10 ¢ ride?

Wherever there is a carousel, the calliope eventually plays the same tunes. The animals rise and fall and circle to "While Miami Dreams" and "Beautiful Home of the Rose."

Watch that lovely girl as the carousel swirls now. She's riding the white horse, the one with all the roses she keeps reaching for the brass ring and missing. It's time for her to get off the merry-go-round. We all grow up, don't we?

And there is a moral to the merry-go-round:

There is no brass ring —

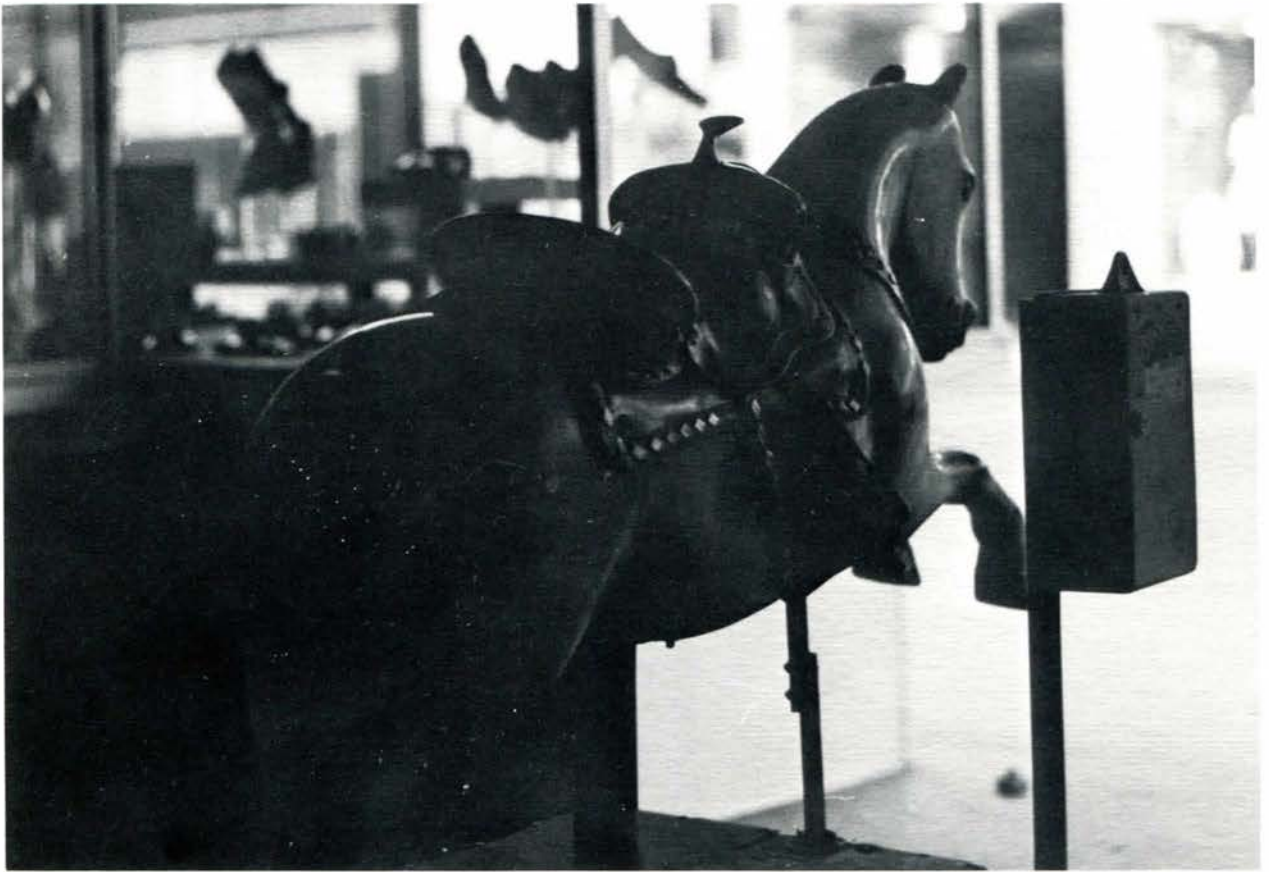

But you can believe in the calliope.

Far better it is to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs even though checkered with failure, than to take rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much, because they live in the grey twilight that knows not victory nor defeat.

Teddy Roosevelt

Never look down to test the ground before taking your next step.
Only he who keeps his eye fixed on the far horizon will find his right road.
Dag Hammarskjöld

The origin of the conflicts between myself and others is the fact that too often I do not know what I feel, I do not say what I mean and I do not do what I say.

Sheldon Kopp

"When Will People Help In A Crisis?"

Kitty Genovese is set upon by a maniac as she returns home from work at 3:00 a.m. Thirty-eight of her neighbors on Kew Gardens come to their windows as she cries out in terror; none come to her assistance even though her stalker takes over half an hour to murder her. No one even so much as calls the police. She dies.

Andrew Mormille is stabbed in the stomach as he rides the A train home to Manhattan. Eleven other riders watch the 17-year-old boy as he bleeds to death; none come to his assistance even though his attackers have left the car. He dies.

An 18-year-old switchboard operator, alone in her office in the Bronx, is raped and beaten. Escaping momentarily, she runs naked and bleeding to the streets, screaming for help. A crowd of 40 passersby gathers and watches as, in broad daylight, the rapist tries to drag her back upstairs; no one interferes. Finally two policemen happen by and arrest her assailant.

Eleanor Bradley trips and breaks her leg while shopping on Fifth Avenue. Dazed and in shock, she calls for help, but the hurrying stream of executives and shoppers simply parts and flows past. After 40 minutes a taxi driver helps her to the doctor.

People say that if we build decent, sanitary shelters, the poor will put coal in their bathtubs. The answer to this is: not if we teach them what bathtubs are for, or where coal goes.

Robert C. Wood

"An Open Letter to a Hippie"

Our democracy is turning away from the individual and our government is not entirely candid. Big business is impersonal and wasteful. Mass education is inefficient and boring. Some of our laws are archaic and unfair. Foreign policy is obscure. The list goes on and on . . .

As a hippie, you have helped society a little bit because you have made the rest of us reexamine ourselves and the problems of society a little bit more. But what a horrible price you will have paid if you drop out of the future. There is challenge in being a hippie, but there is also challenge in being a man — and that challenge is a far greater one. Where will you be, if you don't keep the door open? Where will you be if you can't return to society?

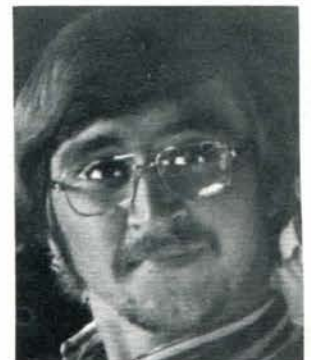

Nicholas H. Charney

If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind.

John Stuart Mill

I went home to my apartment and my roaches are a bit of a problem. We each have our areas. I have my corner, and they have the rest of the apartment. Except they always come into my corner.

Actually, the parallels between my roaches and the Viet Cong can hardly be ignored. There are seventeen parallels. Both my roaches and the V.C. are indigenous forces, are ignorant, ill-clad, and underfed; they both drag away bodies of their slain, come back no matter how many are killed, move by night, avoid prolonged engagements with the enemy, are not white, are fighting against people who are, have been fighting for generations, are of uncertain numbers, move via infiltration routes, are wily, are outarmed by the enemy, are contemptuous of death, are independent of outside control, are inscrutable, and are winning.

from The Strawberry Statement; Notes of a College Revolutionary
 by James Sigmon Kunen

There must be a beginning of any great matter; but the continuing unto the end until it be thoroughly finished yields the true glory.
Sir Francis Drake

I believe without a shadow of doubt that science and peace will finally triumph over ignorance and war, and that the nations of the earth will ultimately agree not to destroy, but to build up.
Louis Pasteur

The same wind moves us

The same earth holds us

The same sun feeds us

In my work with students I have of prisoners.

Seymour L. Halleck

We shall never cease from exploration,

Oliver Wendell Holmes

People are lonely because they build walls instead of bridges.

We are one, part of the whole, rushing toward an unknown sea.
we meet, for a brief time, and are forever changed because of that meeting.
for those whose journey to the eternal sea has ended before ours, we send this message, "our conscious mind may forget you after a time, but because of a look, a word, or a thought exchanged between us, we will never wholly forget."
with cherished thoughts, you remain in our memory:

The quest for self may require many of the things conservatives abhor: permissiveness, experimentation, incompleteness, frankness, criticism, skepticism and contradictions.

Anarchy doesn't create anything. Like bombs that level the structures of a city, it solves the traffic problem — temporarily.

the happening — 1972 — in many ways is just like any other yearbook; then again, like none ever before printed. to some, this book may give joy, some may find humor, some happiness, some sorrow, some anger. some may see themselves for the first time, some for the last, some — never.

look as you may, you'll not find a photograph of the yearbook staff between these covers. you're holding and reading us now. you have our feelings, attitudes, emotions, desires, and perceptions. you shouldn't need our faces.

a personal thanks goes to all those who contributed to the publication of this yearbook — your qualities are what it's all about. a special note of thanks is extended to mary and jacque of student services, fred and buddy of audio-visual, to giles shepherd for photography assistance on cover and division pages, and to all the photographers and typists who spent many hours doing our thing. working with you has really been a far out experience.
good-night, miss d — wherever you are!
t. whisnant — head editor

the fifth edition of the happening was published and bound by hunter publishing company in winston-salem, north carolina. this book was printed through the off-set lithographic process, with cover being processed in four-color. basic paper stock is saxony embossed enamel. type used is metrolite 2-point leaded. press run-750 copies. further specifications upon request. address inquiries to the happening, western piedmont community college, morganton, north carolina 28655.

never fear that your life
